This project equipped members at Fox Hill Road Baptist Church (FHRBC) for personal Bible intake. The equipping process involved a sermon series on the doctrine of Scripture and a teaching series addressing specific issues related to personal Bible intake. At the end of the equipping process, an eight-week Bible study plan centered on Bible intake in order for project participants to put into practice what they learned, as well as to train others in personal Bible intake. Chapter 1 introduces the ministry context of FHRBC, along with the rationale, purpose, goals, research methodologies, definitions, and delimitations of the project. Chapters 2 argues that a basic understanding of the doctrine of Scripture is a necessary foundation for personal Bible intake. The inspiration, authority, inerrancy, necessity, sufficiency, and clarity are all essential attributes of Scripture that set a necessary foundation for personal Bible intake. Chapter 3 argues that a basic understanding of how to study the Bible is a necessary foundation for personal Bible intake. Understanding the gospel as the entry point into the Bible, the Bible's big picture, the process of interpretation, and the process of application are all practical issues related to personal Bible intake that set a second necessary foundation for personal Bible intake. Chapter 4 details the sermon series, teaching series, and Bible study plan. Chapter 5 concludes with an overall evaluation of the project and suggestions for improvement and further development.

In 2011 the World Bank—with funding from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation—launched the Global Findex database, the world's most comprehensive data set on how adults save, borrow, make payments, and manage risk. Drawing on survey data collected in collaboration with Gallup, Inc., the Global Findex database covers more than 140 economies around the world. The initial survey round was followed by a second one in 2014 and by a third in 2017. Compiled using nationally representative surveys of more than 150,000 adults age 15 and above in over 140 economies, The Global Findex Database 2017: Measuring Financial Inclusion and the Fintech Revolution includes updated indicators on access to and use of formal and informal financial services. It has additional data on the use of financial technology (or fintech), including the use of mobile phones and the Internet to conduct financial transactions. The data reveal opportunities to expand access to financial services among people who do not have an account—the unbanked—as well as to promote greater use of digital financial services among those who do have an account. The Global Findex database has become a mainstay of global efforts to promote financial inclusion. In addition to being widely cited by scholars and development practitioners, Global Findex data are used to track progress toward the World Bank goal of Universal Financial Access by 2020 and the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. The database, the full text of the report, and the underlying country-level data for all figures—along with the questionnaire, the survey methodology, and other relevant materials—are available at

Although we have been successful in our careers, they have not turned out quite as we expected. We both have changed positions several times-for all the right reasons-but there are no pension plans vesting on our behalf. Our retirement funds are growing only through our individual contributions. Michael and I have a wonderful marriage with three great children. As I write this, two are in college and one is just beginning high school. We have spent a fortune making sure our children have received the best education available. One day in 1996, one of my children came home disillusioned with school. He was bored and tired of studying. "Why should I put time into studying subjects I will never use in real life?" he protested. Without thinking, I responded, "Because if you don't get good grades, you won't get into college." "Regardless of whether I go to college," he replied, "I'm going to be rich."
