Heartbreak Soup (Luba and Palomar #1) Gilbert Hernandez It took me a little while to get into this, I found it quite confusing at first and I had a hard time to keep track of the characters. The book is a mix of some very short vignettes and some longer stories, taking place in the isolated village of Palomar, somewhere in Central America (I don't think a country is ever mentioned...)

Heartbreak Soup (Luba and Palomar, #1) by Gilbert Hernández

Gilbert Hernandez's characters in "Heartbreak Soup" first appear to represent typical Latino/a stereotypes, but these stereotypes are almost always subverted in his narratives because although they are familiar, Hernandez's characters are richly complex.

Palomar the Heartbreak Soup Stories by Hernandez Gilbert ...

Palomar is the mythical Central American setting for the "Heartbreak Soup" stories. Weaving in and out of the town's entire population, these stories craft an intricate tapestry of Latin American experience. Hernandez's densely plotted and deeply imagined tales have drawn comparison with the work of magic realist authors such as Gabriel Garcia Marquez and Isabel Allende and his depictions of women, most notably in the form of the indomitable Luba, and the Mexican-American experience have ...

Palomar: The Heartbreak Soup Stories (Love and Rockets ...

From the smart cover design onward, the 1987 Titan edition of Heartbreak Soup takes a more sensible approach to the presentation of Gilbert Hernandez's early Palomar stories than the US equivalent Heartbreak Soup and Other Stories. Here the only other stories are set in Palomar, which may disappoint anyone who admires Hernandez's versatility, but it makes for a stronger collection.
